Doubtful Assessments.

The assessment placed upon the Jarvie Memorial Library endowment fund property in Austin place has been taken off by the Town Council. The assessments levied upon the Glen Ridge Cemetery Company's property in Franklin avenue, and that upon the property in Thomas street of the Morris County Society for the Promotion of Religious Learning, are now before the Commissioners of Appeals, and it is likely that they will be declared illegal assessments and stricken from the tax duplicate. The Savings Institute demands that its assessment be reduced from $9,000 to $2,400. The National Bank claims exemption under the law from tax upon its stock and is likely to gain its point, and all these things taken together point to a large reduction in the available taxable assets of the town. All of these assessments were returned to the County Board and the town pays county tax upon them. The Board of Assessors in their zeal to get all the taxable property possible upon the tax books included all of the above enumerated doubtful property. It appears from statements made by the Board of Assessors as to why they placed these questionable properties in the tax levy, the object was to obtain definite decision upon them that would place them definitely either as taxable or non-taxable properties.

Novelty at Trenton.

For the first time in many years members-elect of the Legislature will be left to work out their own organization plans and choose their own officers. Heretofore that work has been done for the members of the Assembly and Senate by political manipulators who have control of State politics. The members of the incoming Legislature are holding conferences at Trenton and are putting candidates for positions of power in shaping legislation through a process of questioning, and the endorsement of the candidate will depend alone upon the satisfaction resulting from their answers to the pointed questions put to them.

Church Concert.

A concert, the second of a series to be given during the winter, was held in the Watsessing M. E. Church on Thursday night. Those who took part were Master H. Bradley in vocal solos; Miss Anna Friedrich, piano solos; Lewis R. Jones, songs; Miss Leonard, recitation; Rev. Staley F. Davis of Kearny, bass solos; E. Walter Morris, flute; Mrs. Shults, song; Lewis R. and T. Griffith Jones, vocal duet. The accompanists were the Misses E. L. Fredericks, Paula Selbert and Mary Lyle and T. Griffith Jones.

Mountainside Hospital.

The following are the residents of this town contributing to the support of the Mountainside Hospital during the month of November: Mrs. J. Albinson, Mrs. P. Arnold, Leopold Bloch, Rev. George L. Curtis, Mrs. Chubb, Mrs. N. Harvey Dodd, Mrs. H. G. Diebrow, Essex Hook and Ladder Co., Mrs. Fred Fleischer, Mrs. J. J. Hughes, Thomas Oaker, Mrs. J. S. Suffer, Miss Ventrone, Dr. Gertrude Ward, Mrs. J. R. Wilde.

Sunday Services.

Until further notice the services at Ascension Chapel (Episcopal), corner Montgomery and Berkeley avenues, will be as follows:

8 A. M., Holy Communion, except 1st Sunday in month; 10:30 A. M., morning prayer and sermon, first Sunday in month; Holy Communion; 3 P. M., Sunday-school; 7:30 P. M., service of song; 8 P. M., evening prayer and sermon.

Pastor Jackson Returning.

The Rev. H. Trevena Jackson, pastor of the Watsessing M. E. Church, who was suddenly called to England on account of the death of his mother, has started home again and is expected to occupy his pulpit again on Sunday, December 12th.

Injured in Auto Accident.

Zedion G. Wood of Franklin street is confined to his home suffering from injuries sustained in an automobile accident which occurred on Washington avenue, Newark, Thursday evening. Mr. Wood's injuries consist of a sprained arm and severe body bruises.

Who is a Christian?

Who is a farmer? Who is a bookkeeper? Who is a machinist? Who is a salesman? There is no difficulty in answering these four questions. The answer is so easy that the wayfaring man need not ask them. In every case it is one who in daily practice actually lives the life (performs the duties) thus indicated. When did these persons begin to be farmers, bookkeepers, machinists, and salesmen? This answer is equally plain: When they began the actual performance of their respective duties. Who is a Christian? would be just as easily answered if Christianity had as well known a definition. If Christianity be righteousness, the "wayfaring man" would answer: A Christian is one who in daily practice is righteous. If we ask when such a one began to be a Christian, the answer is equally plain: When he began to practice righteousness.

If, on the other hand, Christianity consists of an admixture of beliefs, professions, creeds, ceremonials and mysteries that mankind have quarrelled over from time immemorial, then no man can give an answer.

The writer prefers the straightforward definition: Righteousness. In this growing age of strenuous progress in all branches of God's Providence (physical, mental, moral) advance is impossible without simple, plain pathways.

From creation's dawn, so far as we can learn, the Creator has in a multitude of messages taught the supreme necessity of righteousness. Christ set forth with such a vigor and clearness as to give it almost the power of a new message. Indeed, He made it new to those of His day by stripping off the overgrowth of ceremonial and mysticism and hypocrisy that had almost hidden the truth.

If then Christianity be righteousness, its beginnings are not beyond understanding. If the message of the pulpit be given to lead men to righteousness, then the repetition of that message by parents, friends and comrades also leads to righteousness. If the message be clear and plain, unshrouded with things that no man can understand; if it be straightforward, not contradicting on one occasion what has been proclaimed at an earlier date; if it be simply righteousness, then it will go forth with power and be repeated with power by parents, friends and comrades.

Such messages come to most of us in the early months of forgotten infancy, by the encouragement, the chiding, and the ever various guidance of those who love us as no other earthly friend can love. As we grow older and mingle with playmates in games and other childish associations, we repeat the message of right to them as we have learned it, and they to us as they have learned it. Each and every toddling boy and girl has already imbibed quite positive views of right and wrong, for God has provided messengers for his message—righteousness—for all ages, all conditions, all races, all kindred of His multitudinous creation. If he has not, then his creation is a failure. He is not God, and no strong man or woman can worship him.

As our years advance, the message is forever retold to us by business rules, by comradeship rules, by the laws of games and pastimes, by the regulations of travel and of commerce, by the lessons of heat and cold, and wind and tide, by the stress of storm and strife, and by the climax of death.

Just as clearly it is told by the coming of the morning's dawn by the beauty of the opening rose, by the exquisite perfume of the expanding lily, by the trill and warble of the bird-song, by the luscious nectar of the ripened grape, by the gentle touch of the softest breeze, by the away of chastened friendship and by the power of prayer.

Each of these tells and retells in endless ways the one great message—righteousness. Each one is the voice of God speaking to His child. By just so much as you have clearly heard his voice and built its lessons into your daily life, by just so much are you a righteous man, or a righteous woman, or a righteous child. No less, no more. By just so much are you a Christian. No "profession" makes you righteous except it leads you to practice righteousness. No "belief" avails for righteousness, except it leads you into righteous living. Search your actual, every-day practice for righteousness. By that search you will discover your attainment as a Christian.

New Material for Taxation.

A lawyer who made a speech here during the recent political campaign, in the course of a conversation previous to the opening of the meeting at which he spoke said in regard to the filly law and its possible effect upon the taxable valuation of property that he did not think that the effect would be as damaging as some people imagined. In his opinion the further legislation in connection with the filly law would furnish new material for local taxation, and thus minimize the effect of the law upon real estate owners. No particular specifications were made as to the new material for taxation, but judging from recent legislation a tendency has been towards extending exemptions, privileges to incorporated institutions, thereby increasing the tax burden of house owners.

Shows a Profit.

A net profit of $21,067.99 for the operation of the Water Department of East Orange for 1904 is an excellent showing. Mr. Yardley and the Council are to be congratulated upon this result. With the introduction of the new system of finance, through the ordinance recently presented by William B. Lloyd, and the reorganization of the Police Department soon to be made, the city government will start the new year in better shape than ever to do good work. "Ring out the old, ring in the new," is a good New Year motto for the coming City Council.

In his response to a call for a speech at the Republican City Convention which unanimously nominated Mayor Cardwell, he said: "I take it that what the people of this city, regardless of party, want of their officials is a clean, vigorous, business-like administration, which will not only represent pure motives, but also the true principles of honest government and unselfish civic pride. If I am elected I will do my part; and use the opportunities and powers of the Mayor's office to satisfy every reasonable expectation of a clean and honest government, free from political or personal motives." By which we suppose he meant that if, at any time, the duty of doing something unpleasant for himself and for his friends, but plainly for the benefit of the city and city government, should present itself, he would do it regardless of party or personal considerations. From his acts so far we have no reason to suppose that he will hesitate, delay and shirk the responsibility of acting up to his promises when the good of the city demands it in any particular of which he has control.—East Orange Gazette.

Trust Companies and Savings Banks.

Trust companies and savings banks are assessed to the value of their realty holdings, and to the corporation direct, while their security holdings such as government bonds, stocks and bonds of New Jersey railroad companies, and gas companies, mortgages, etc., are exempt and deducted in estimating the value of the capital stock and surplus for taxation.

A comparison between these two classes of institutions consequently shows that the investment in a share of the latter would yield the greater income to the investor, even though the book value be less.

The contention by National banks is that as all these institutions use capital and do a competitive business they should be taxed fairly and equitably on some common basis, equally advantageous to all, and that while they are restricted to a great extent in the character of their investments and in other channels and required to carry a greater amount of revenue, they should at least not be taxed unfairly, or at no greater rate than the state institutions. There is no reason why National banks should be subjected to greater burdens than other banking concerns, as it is manifestly against their interest to have a greater assessment levied on them, while their competitors receive the benefits of the exemption clause.—Commerci and Finance.

The Civic Union's Position.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE CITIZEN: Sir: The party who signs himself "Observer" in the article published in your last issue, attacking the Civic Union on the license question, has communicated with some one authorized to speak for that organization and not confined himself to "street gossip," as he would have learned that the so-called "street gossip," also the articles published in the Newark papers, did not emanate from the Civic Union or any one connected with it. I will say, for his information, that he is "barking up the wrong tree," as the matter of increased license has not been discussed by the Civic Union either as a body or by the executive council.

Very respectfully yours,

WM. S. S. ROWLAND,

President.

Lawn Enough.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE CITIZEN: Sir: Before embarking the town books with any more "trellises and restrictions upon the liquor business, let the laws that are there now be enforced. If a man pays $300 for the privilege of carrying on business here, let him be sufficiently protected against competition with people who carry on the same line of business without paying a license. If non-licensed places can be profitably conducted now, they will be more numerous and profitable under a $500 license ordinance, for as it is now the men who comply with the law and pay the $300 fee, together with their other taxes and expenses, and with an increase in the license fee, the number of legitimate places will be reduced and the number of illegal places increased. The statute books, both State and town, are now encumbered with laws applying to the liquor traffic, and no further legislation is required at present, particularly here in Bloomfield.

Will Take a Stand.

Senator-elect Rowland Colby has returned from his vacation trip and will take an active part in the Republican County Committee campaign fight. Mr. Colby favors the candidacy of Lathrop Anderson, and the combined influence of all those who assisted Mr. Colby in his fight for the Senate will be used in the effort to secure Mr. Anderson's election.

Wanted: 50 Men and Women.

W. W. Keyler, the enterprising druggist, is advertising to-day for fifty men and women to take advantage of the special half-price offer he is making on Dr. Howard's celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, and get a fifty-cent package at half-price, 25 cents.

So positive is he of the remarkable power of this specific to cure these diseases, as well as sick headache and liver troubles, that he agrees to refund the money to any customer whom this medicine does not quickly relieve and cure.

With Dr. Howard's specific at hand, you can eat what you want and have no fear of ill consequences. It strengthens the stomach, gives perfect digestion, regulates the bowels, creates an appetite, and makes life worth the living.

This is an unusual opportunity to obtain 50 doses of the best medicine ever made for half its regular price, with the personal guarantee of a well known business man to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction.

If you cannot call at W. W. Keyler's store to-day, send him 25 cents by mail, and he will send you a package, promptly charged paid.

W. W. Keyler has been able to secure only a limited supply of the specific, so great is the demand, and you should hurry to-day taking advantage of the liberal offer he is making this week.—Adv.

Woman Suffrage in Russia.

It is announced that universal suffrage has been granted in Russia and if the czar keeps his word the women of Russia will have the suffrage before the women of free America.

Every organization of men in Russia from the National League of University Professors down have demanded universal suffrage without distinction of sex, religion or nationality.

It is rather surprising to find all classes of progressive Russians in favor of equal rights for women, while the majority of American men are still opposed. But it may be accounted for by the fact that the Russian men know what it is to be without influence in the affairs of State which American men do not know. American men cannot comprehend, like the Russian men, what it is to live in a country and love it and still have no voice in its affairs.

Throughout all the struggle for liberty in Russia, the women have worked shoulder to shoulder with the men. They have taken their full share of all the toils and dangers. The women have gone side by side with the men to prison, to Siberia, and to the scaffold, and it is a matter for congratulation that the men now think the women are good enough to go side by side with them to the ballot box.

That United States will not be far behind Russia in doing justice to its women is evident by the fact that over 300 State and National organizations outside the woman suffrage organizations within the past year, have declared themselves in favor of full suffrage for women. The last great organization to take this action was the American Federation of Labor at its annual convention in Pittsburgh, Pa.
